

The entertainment industry loves anything that takes away consumer rights and increases their control over any form of progress or technological innovation that does not provide them with profits. Fair use rights of all forms of media including television should not be restricted just to satisfy the craven greed of the wealthy Hollywood cartel.

They opposed the VCR yet have managed to profit greatly from it. They STILL have no clue that there is plenty of money to be made from on-line music sales. Now that digital television and HDTV are getting close to reality the immediate response is to once again try to control a new technology to the detriment of the public.

Please consider that most of the input being given to you is a well orchestrated campaign paid for by people that are motivated by greed and fear.

Thank you.

Dan Bolger